CHICAGO, April 13.—One of the fiere est and most disastrous fires the Chicago department has fought in many years swept through west Madison street yesterday afternoon. The big Smythe building that extends from Union half way to Halstead street was destroyed, and with it the contents of John M. Smythe & Co.'s furniture house, the largest retail establishment in the world. All that is left of Kohl & Mid-dleton's West Side dime museum is a heap of bricks and charred timbers. On the north side of Madison street from Union street to the Haymarket theatre block, five buildings were destroyed. Three of them tumbled down before the maelstrom of fire, and at one time fiercely that everybody thought it would share the fate of its neighbors, but the firemen managed to save the structure, though in a seriously damaged condition. The total loss is estimated at between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000. John M. Smythe & Co. alone will lose nearly $600,000. An extraordinary feature of the conflagration was the

Many of the women fainted or were overcome by the smoke and had to be carried out. By this time Smythe & Co.'s big building clear down to union street was ablaze. The flames ran through the in-

Washington, April 12.—An elderly lady, Mrs. Colonel Davidson, called at lady, Mrs. Colonel Davidson, called at the White house yesterday morning and met the president. Mrs. Davidson claims to be a niece of Gen. Jackson, and remarked to Col. Dinsmore that she had not entered the Whi'e house before since she was a girl, back in the 30s. She stated that she was in needy circumstances and had traveled all the weight of coin in the treasury to be way from Oregon City upon charity ributions. Her destination is Norfolk, Va., her old home.

The president shook her cordially by the hand, and gave instructions to have transportation provided for her to Nor-folk. Her husband was an officer in the Mexican war, and Col. Dinsmore inquired if she drew a pension. She said she did not, and did not know how to apply for one. The kind-hearted colonel then escorted her to an attorney's office, and an application was speedily prepared.
